

I find it highly hypocritical that the this is being done in the name of protecting terrestrial broadcasters ability to compete fairly. this coming from the same commission that refuses to publically define indecency, attacks high revenue producing on-air talent, and allows giant conglomerates like clear channel to effectively hold a monopoly over terrestrial radio. leave satellite radio alone, allow them to offer their customers the best possible product that they can. if terrestrial broadcasters are up in arms over the defection to satellite radio, then clearly they need to figure out a way to offer a better product!

sincerely

Josh Goldstein
Howard Stern Fan
XM Radio Fan
American Citizen